Construction moving along for green materials company in Ferndale

ISABELLE DILLS - THE BELLINGHAM HERALD

Each week, The Bellingham Herald takes a look at an ongoing commercial construction project or profiles a business in Whatcom County. This week: The Deltalok building.

What is happening?

Crews are erecting the steel frame of the Deltalok building in Ferndale. Crews broke ground last month on the building, which will house the U.S. division of Deltalok, a global company that provides green building materials.

Where is it?

5711 Barrett Road.

Who is doing the work?

Credo Construction Inc. is the general contractor for the construction.

How much does it cost?

The cost of the construction is just shy of $1 million.

Scheduled completion date?

Construction is expected to be completed by July or August 2009.

What is noteworthy about the project?

The building has 9,000 square feet and is made of pre-engineered steel. It will have 5,700 square feet of office space for sales staff with the rest being a warehouse facility. Employees are currently using office space at the Emerald Bay Events facility, which is on the same property. The new building will give employees 10 to 12 new offices, conference rooms and lunch rooms. The new warehouse facility will give the company adequate space to store their product.
